All Set For The Big Hard Time Dance

Zip, Bing, Boof. They are off for the big time at the Rink for that Thanksgiving Hard Time Dance to be given by the Wrangell Orchestra and a word to the wise is sufficient for they know what a good time they are going to have. As some one said, "we have turkey for supper, but after that we have a big time at the Rink and dance the Turkey Trot, so you see we have two Turkeys. And say the music is great, great, great, for every one that has heard the rehearsals say their feet just itched to dance, so I'm going and I bet you are too. (Whisper) watch for the surprise on the street the afternoon of the 25th. it's great. Watch your steps.--- Committee.

They will be returning south to Prince Rupert on the Princess Sophia.

David Lott Sent To Asylum

The steamer Humboldt called in port yesterday morning to take south David Lott the young boy who was adjudged insane by a jury in Judge Thomas's court some time ago. He was taken south to the Morningside asylum by Deputy Marshal Frank Cook, of Skagway.

Makes First Shipment Of Alaska Shrimp

The first shipment of shrimp to be made from Wrangell, was made on the Dolphin last Saturday. The shipment contained about two hundred pounds of fine large shrimp. Wrangellites were given a chance to try them as about a hundred pounds were placed on the market and sold here.

The shrimp were caught at the entrance to Wrangell Narrows by Victor Noberg, Chas. Chase and Arthur Thebo.

New River Is Discovered In The Tanana

That a hitherto unknown river of considerable proportion, was found on his late trip southward from the Tanana is the strange news brought by H. M. Eaken, of the geological survey, last Saturday. The river is not indicated on any map; neither has it been spoken of by any of the people supposed to be most conversant with the general outline of the region through which it flows. Its outlet is in the Tanana at an undetermined point above (or east) of the Cosna, and it is notably larger than the last named stream.

Lane Says Steffenson Is No Fake

Fairbanks.—Refuting in detail an article published in Seward charging the Canadian explorer, Viljalml Steffansson, with being a faker, Capt. Louis Lane, who sold the Polar Bear to Steffansson, gave an extended interview here today, covering the explorer's travels in the Arctic.

Capt. Kane arrived early this morning from Herschell island via boat and dogteam. He left the island on the morning of September 30, making the 20 miles to the mainland in an open boat. Meeting two prospectors, C. L. Burr and William Adair, he joined them, and the three came overland 1,200 miles by dog team.

"I found Steffansson and his party on a sand spit off Kellet cape on August 11," said Lane. "He had landed there three days before from his winter sled trip.

"After some dickering I sold him the Polar Bear with the equipment aboard and after overhauling all the gear he declares he was now in possession of the best outfit he ever had for Arctic work. On September 3 he sailed north from Banksland."

Capt. Lane has a letter from Steffansson asking the Canadian government to allow him to remain in the north one more year after this.

Will Work The Alaska Kelp Beds

Henry M. Stowe and Thomas D. Smith of Cleveland, Ohio, were in Wrangell last Friday. They are making a tour of Southeastern Alaska studying the kelp beds with a view a working them for the manufacture of potash and the by-products will make fertilizer. They have an option on the buildings at Warm Springs Bay where the plant will be built.

Mr. Stowe was associated with T. R. Needham in the issuing of the Stikine River Journal, the first newspaper published in Wrangell.

Alaska Great Fur Raising Country

Alaska is the greatest fur-bearing section of the United States. It produces about $1,000,000 worth of furs annually. These include all varieties, from squirrel pelts of an average value of 8 cents each to black fox pelts at from $250 to $1250 each. The fur output in 1913 included 1600 bear skins valued at over $33,000, at from $6 for brown bear skins to $40 for the grizzly or polar bear. (Leslie's)

Grand Trunk New Line To Alaska

The Grand Trunk Pacific railroad contemplates a line of steamers for the Southeastern Alaska run as far north as Skagway. The present plan is to inaugurate the service about Jan. 1, 1916, by placing on the run a small steamer with ample facilities to meet the requirements of the present. With the opening of spring, the Prince Rupert and Prince George will alternate between Seattle and Skagway, reaching the latter port each Friday and sailing south Saturday evening.

SANTA MONICA.—The Police commissioners will attempt to regulate the clothing worn by some of the dancers in the cafes and pavilions under their jurisdiction. Raiment is too scarce, is the belief of some of the commissioners. Commissioner Goetz remarked: "I honestly believe some of the women have about concluded to wear no clothes at all. The stores are advertising clothes for the women that do not weigh more than two or three ounces and even the school girls in some cases are wearing clothes which in quantity is hardly enough to keep them from catching cold."

Mr. R. L. Petty, of Ketchikan, was a visitor in Wrangell for a few days the past week. In speaking of the prospects of Wrangell, Mr. Petty gives us a good boost and predicts one of the coming cities of southeastern Alaska here within a few years, and he states, "I look to see Wrangell have a population of three thousand within the next year or so." Mr. Petty returned to his home on the Humboldt.

A marriage license was issued in Seattle Friday, Nov. 12, to Christian A. H. Sand and Miss Amelia Klungerber, both of Wrangell, Alaska.

The analysis ranked FISHER'S BLEND FLOUR higher in General Average, Gluten Quality, Water Absorption and Loaf Value than the best Dakota all-Hard Wheat Patent Flour, which is the recognized standard for bread-stuff efficiency. FISHER'S BLEND FLOUR is a scientific combination of Eastern Hard Wheat and Western Soft Wheat, preserving the best qualities of each. THANKSGIVING!

Today is Thanksgiving Day when we should give thanks for all the many blessings we have received during the past year. We have a lot to be thankful for this day. So much of the good in this world is smiling on this big country of ours, that we do not seem to realize it. We should be thankful for the peace and prosperity that is blessing our flag while half of the world is at war; thankful for the good crops from all parts of our lands; thankful that we live in Alaska; thankful for our ability to help the homeless and needy; thankful that a huge isn't going to crash into our home any minute; and above all thankful that we live in this Northland where we are at peace with all the world.

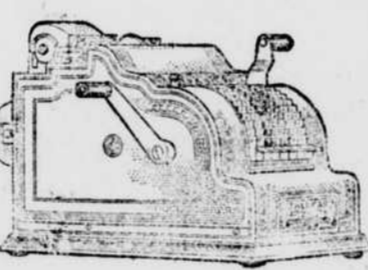

Feelings Of An Old Sourdough

Give me back those days of old,
With pack-straps, beans and bacon;
The sourdough panning out the gold.
And new claims some a-staking.
I want to climb old Chilkoot Pass
And see the huskies musing;
I'd love to see the the pioneer lass
Who dressed like men—not blushing,
Old Crater Lake I long to see,
And Long Lake lonely sleeping,
And think of friends so dear to me
When our sleds came down a-leaping,
Old Linderman Lake I want to see,
Where pioneers camped in years gone by
When men were true and life was free,
And the pibnee mused without a sigh.
And then old Bennet, dear lake of blue;
I'd love to gaze on visions sweet,
And see the old trail fade from view—
This would be joy—my dream complete.

Ironing Tablecloths.
The effect of a lovely linen tablecloth is often spoiled by the network of creases caused by folding it. In the future when ironing the cloth fold it once through the middle, roll and tie with a piece of tape. In this manner there will be but the one crease and the tablecloth will lie flat and smooth upon the table.—Indianapolis Star.

To Illustrate.

Example as well as precept was furnished to the youthful autograph fiend who wrote to one of the world's richest men, asking for an "autograph sentiment" and inclosing a two cent stamp for his reply. Over his opulence's signature came the prompt response—on a postcard:
"A penny saved is a penny earned."
—Lippincott's.

Strange Mistake.

Old Mrs. Jones entered the drawing room unexpectedly and spotted a very pretty tableau.
"I was just whispering a secret in Cousin Jennie's ear," explained Charlie. "I'm sorry," said the old lady gravely, "that your eyesight has become so bad that you mistake Jennie's mouth for her ear."—London Tit-Bits.

Paw Knows.

White—Paw, what is a rough neck? Paw—A man who wears a rubber collar, my son.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Double Exit.

Mr. Staylate—The lamp is going out. What should I do? Miss Sweet—A company it.—Milwaukee Journal.

Realism.

"Don't you often tire of the realism in life?" "Not if it's real money."—Baltimore American.

Talks Them Up.

"He talks well, doesn't he?" "Of course he talks well. He has occasion to talk well. He dines the artesian kind."—Baltimore American.

The Usual Result.

"Yes, Charlie is as brave as a stack of lions. Did you hear about his daring a policeman to arrest him?" "No! Gee, what happened?" "He was arrested."—Cleveland Star.

Sam Cunningham Brings Home

A Duck

Sam Cunningham, popular mixer at the Central, and Peter Jensen, are spending a few days at the flats, Charlie Nelson taking his shift at Central. Sam has promised all his friends a mess of ducks for Thanksgiving dinners and was scheduled back today but according to a report from the flats, Sam has been hunting for three days and the other night came in with his first duck, which the informer states, turned out to be a fish duck, but Pete, being a good friend of Sam, did not tell him but got up in the night and substituted a perfectly good Mallard for it and threw the fish duck overboard, so some one is going to get a feed off that Mallard if Pete doesn't get sore and take it back.

Big Editor Says We Should Buck

Writing to a Fairbanks man, Col. John A. Sleisher, editor of Leslie's Weekly, says that the resources of Alaska have been tied up by the cheapest kind of political red tape, and that if she does not get what she wants that she should threaten to secede. His letter follows, "I have just returned from your wonderful territory and I am writing a series of letters regarding it. I shall not hesitate to call attention to the government's dereliction in this as in other matters as effecting the welfare of your wonderful territory. Leslie's stand for the opening of Alaska and has stood for if the past three years, "If Alaska doesn't get what she wants she may be obliged to threaten to secede from the Union until attention is paid to her wants. The mere threat of secession would awaken the entire country to the deservings of your wonderful territory. The fact is that the resources of Alaska have been tied up by the cheapest kind of political red tape for which both the two great political parties are more or less to blame. No one could blame them for secession."

Clippings From Our Alaska Exchanges

The Dawson Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, has decided to spend $2,000 in improvements to its hall.

Thomas Riggs, of the Alaska Engineering Commission, says that our railroad may be completed in three years.

Mrs. Robert Henderson, wife of the famous discoverer of the Klondike, died at Vancouver, B. C., on the 25th of last month.

The dead body of Tom Geoffry, an old-timer, was found drifting in the Yukon river, a short way from Stewart, on a raft.

Cleveland, Ohio, capitalists are looking over the Southeastern Alaska kelp fields, with the expectations of manufacturing potash.

The great volcanic peaks, Illam-na and Redoubt, on the west shore of Cook Inlet, are smoking. They are not in eruption, however.

Juneau should have an organization for the promotion of good roads, is the opinion of Jack Hayes, road superintendent of Southeastern Alaska.

Col. W. P. Richardson announces that he will ask congress for an appropriation of $410,000 to complete the wagon road from Valdez to Fairbanks.

The C. K. M. Co.'s power plant at the mouth of bear creek, near Dawson, was recently destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

A conference of democratic leaders is planned for the latter part of the present month at Juneau. Judge Bunnel, of the Fourth division, is expected to be in attendance.

With 289 passengers from Nome, and 80 tons of tin from Cape York, the Pacific Coast Steamship Co.'s liner Senator reached Seattle on the 5th inst., completing her last trip for 1915.

The ptarmigan are now coming down from the hills, according to the Eskimo hunters, all of which indicates "heap plenty cold winter" or something of the kind. The most apparent feature of the native prognostication are that they always seem to cling pretty much to the same old formula and it usually contains anything but a pleasant prospect. —Nome Nugget.

That the wind blows in Cook Inlet is established by the fact that the freighter Cordova recently lost both anchors trying to get into a anchorage. To avoid going ashore she was compelled to put to sea and return to Seward.

Juneau is becoming some city. It has sixty automobiles, a bank with deposits over a million dollars, and the Juneau-Douglas Telephone Company is putting in a new switchboard capable of serving 1700 phones. —Ex.

The Columbia hotel in Fairbanks was destroyed by fire October 30th. The extreme cold hampered the firemen in fighting the flames and it was impossible to save the building. One of the firemen, Jack Hansen, fell from a ladder and was injured. The loss is estimated at $5,000, none of which was covered by insurance.

John Frame, the Valdez newspaper man, has announced that he will again go into the newspaper business in that town, after having recently been deprived of his outfit by unscrupulous creditors. He has already arranged for the purchase of a job press and some type which were a part of the plant of the defunct Cordova Alaskan.

At least one newspaper man in Alaska has gained a fortune. That is he didn't make it in the business, some relative was considerate enough to die and and leave what he couldn't take with him, so it was passed on to Wulf of the Valdez Prospector. Did he put it in the business? Not on your daguerreotype. He went back where the fortune was left and took hold of it without the least compunction, and proposes to nurse it the balance of his days.
